

Welcome to

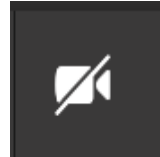

POLICING INNOVATION FORUM 2021

Effective Partnerships in Policing

Partnering Up Against Cybercrime

1400-1700

27 May

Agenda for the afternoon

1400	Introduction	Prof Geoff Pearson, N8PRP Academic Director
Session 1:	Strategy
1410	Interests in common: Working with the private sector to maximise resources and build partnerships for the future of cybercrime	Brian Dilley, Lloyds Banking Group
1430	Creating a new win win: why technology will change policing and private sector objectives	Mandy Haeburn-Little, Business Resilience International Management
1450	Questions to the speakers
1500	Coffee Break
Session 2:	Practice
1510	'What's it got to do with us?' - A case study in partnering with small businesses to build resilience	Detective Insp. Martin Wilson, Durham Police; Head of Student Services NEBRC
1530	University and Police Partnership in Cybersecurity: How ethical hacking and cybersecurity research are helping small and medium businesses	Biju Issac, Northumbria University
1550	Questions to speakers
1600	Wrap-Up	Justin Partridge, University of Leeds

Welcome from Prof Geoff Pearson,
N8PRP Academic Director

Brian Dilley, Group Director of Fraud & Financial Crime Prevention, Lloyds Banking Group

Interests in common: Working with the private sector to maximise resources and build partnerships for the future of cybercrime

Mandy Haeburn-Little, CEO, Business Resilience International Management

Creating a new win-win: why technology will change policing and private sector objectives

Questions?

Agenda for the afternoon

1400	Introduction	Prof Geoff Pearson, N8PRP Academic Director
Session 1:	Strategy
1410	Interests in common: Working with the private sector to maximise resources and build partnerships for the future of cybercrime	Brian Dilley, Lloyds Banking Group
1430	Creating a new win win: why technology will change policing and private sector objectives	Mandy Haeburn-Little, Business Resilience International Management
1450	Questions to the speakers
1500	Coffee Break
Session 2:	Practice
1510	'What's it got to do with us?' - A case study in partnering with small businesses to build resilience	Detective Insp. Martin Wilson, Durham Police; Head of Student Services NEBRC
1530	University and Police Partnership in Cybersecurity: How ethical hacking and cybersecurity research are helping small and medium businesses	Biju Issac, Northumbria University
1550	Questions to speakers
1600	Wrap-Up	Justin Partridge, University of Leeds

Detective Insp. Martin Wilson, Durham Police;
Head of Student Services NEBRC

‘What’s it got to do with us?’ - A case study in partnering with small businesses to build resilience

Dr. Biju Issac, Associate Professor, Department of Computer and Information Sciences, Northumbria University

University and Police Partnership in Cybersecurity: How ethical hacking and cybersecurity research are helping small and medium businesses

Questions?

Agenda for the afternoon

1400	Introduction	Prof Geoff Pearson, N8PRP Academic Director
Session 1:	Strategy
1410	Interests in common: Working with the private sector to maximise resources and build partnerships for the future of cybercrime	Brian Dilley, Lloyds Banking Group
1430	Cre obje	Mandy Haeburn-Little, Business Resilience International Management
1450	Que
1500	Coff
Session 2:	Prac
1510	'Wh resi	Detective Insp. Martin Wilson, Durham Police; Head of Student Services NEBRC
1530	University and Police Partnership in Cybersecurity: How ethical hacking and cybersecurity research are helping small and medium businesses	Biju Issac, Northumbria University
1550	Questions to speakers
1600	Wrap-Up	Justin Partridge, University of Leeds

Thanks for attending.

See n8prp.org for further information